HARDING MAY ASK TWO STATES FOR ENFORCEMENT ACT

COOPERATION WITH U. S. IN PROHIBITION SOUGHT.
SETS PRECEDENT Action to Follow Request to Governor Smith of New York.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1928, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington.—Will President Harding undertake a campaign of persuasion in the states of Massachusetts and Maryland to bring about the passage of state laws so that the federal prohibition act may be concurrently enforced in those states?
The president's step, in joining the movement to have Governor Al Smith, who is visiting in New York, state legislature repealing the state enforcement act on prohibition has raised the question of what the federal executive might give toward solving the situation in the other states where no assistance is being given in the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.

The impression conveyed by Mr. Harding in his letter made public last week is that New York state is committing a sin of gross magnitude in denying the states which are pledged to complete the Volstead amendment by specific state and local laws.

RUSS INSIST ON BRITISH PARLEY

Moscow Refuses to Yield in Principle From Recent Note.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Moscow.—Leonid Kravskii, Russian soviet representative in London is unofficially understood to have been instructed to inform the British foreign office that Russia cannot yield in principle from its recent note replying to the British ultimatum.
The instructions were sent as the result of a soviet government conference last night.
While willing to make some temporary arrangements regarding the fishing rights of the British trawlers off the Norwegian coast, such as adjusting the territorial zone, and adjusting other secondary points pending general negotiations, Russia still insists that the differences between the two countries can be adjusted only by a conference, particularly on eastern questions. It is pointed out that England, despite numerous requests from the soviet government, has not stated since 1923, exactly what the British policy and interests in Persia and other eastern lands actually are.
Only a conference could reveal this, it is contended, and mutual concessions at such a conference might reconcile the differences. If Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, again declines a conference, the understanding is that Russia feels there is nothing for Kravskii to do but liquidate the affairs of the Russian trade delegation in London.

CURZON BELIEVED SLATED FOR NEW BRITISH PREMIER

BONAR LAW RESIGNS AS HEALTH CONTINUES ON DOWN GRADE.
LABOR IS OPPOSED

Lord Derby Also Spoken of; Balfour Thought Too Old for High Office.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London.—Political gossipers are all most unanimously of the opinion that Marjory Curzon, secretary of state for foreign affairs, will be offered the premiership and that either Lord Stanley Baldwin will be the successor to Andrew Bonar Law, who has resigned because of ill health.
Lord Derby also spoken of as a possibility for the office. The Earl of Balfour's name is generally regarded as ruling him out, although it is suggested that he might take the prime ministership in the event which at the moment is considered altogether unlikely—existing schisms in the conservative ranks are healed and all agree to pull together.
The Daily Herald, labor's newspaper, says Curzon's appointment would be a disaster for Great Britain and for Europe.
Lord Curzon's supposed aloofness and reputed attitude of unbending conservatism are pointed out.

Scandinavian Triple Entente May Result From Royal Parley

London.—Once more the three kings of Scandinavia come together to discuss their joint interests, and above all, their joint defense. They are seizing the occasion of the celebration of the silver wedding of the King and Queen of Denmark to hold their convention at Copenhagen.
Seven years have elapsed since these three monarchs met to consider shatters of joint concern. In 1916 they held a memorable meeting at which they decided to stand together against Germany in the defense of their neutrality.
But the menace has not been removed. Although the Hohenzollern monarchy has disappeared from the scene, yet the Germans have never abandoned their dream of converting the entire Baltic, with all its boundless possibilities of trade and of commerce, into a great and exclusively Teutonic inland sea.
Some time past been alive to this Teuton peril, the realization of which came to him in the nature of a surprise. It is appreciated to the full by King Haakon and by his brother, King Christian. It is clear to all three of them that the only means by which the German menace can be combated is through union and co-operation.

NO WATER RAISE FOR FOUR MONTHS

Griffey Sees No Chance of Even Applying for Boost, Till August.

Existing consumption rates of Janesville's water plant, which have been in effect eight years, will continue unchanged probably for the next six months according to Manager Griffey, who says if any rate increase is sought application cannot be made before August, the earliest in that event, the railroad commission would have to schedule a hearing, adequate notice of which would have to be given and another delay would come in getting a decision.

As the situation now stands, the matter of a proposed rate boost will not even come before the city council until August, Mr. Griffey explained.

"At its last meeting, the water board voted to authorize C. A. Seifert, Madison, who has just completed an audit of the books, to make a consumers' analysis extending over a period of several years," said Mr. Griffey. "This will consist of showing the return from various consumers in the past and the probable revenue in the future under several sorts of rate changes."

"Mr. Seifert will not be able to make this analysis until after June 15 as we will be busy with the books until that time. On completing his report, he will submit several propositions for increasing the revenue the desired amount which, spread over the entire list of consumers, will amount to comparatively little for each. His proposals will then be acted on by the water board and council and, if one is decided on, an application will be made for such a change in rates."

"As it stands now, we know how much more revenue the water department needs to be a substantial, growing institution but we have both long concrete to show the best way of raising this extra amount."

GIVEN STIFF TERM FOR INTOXICATION.—Arrested by Patrolman Patrick Slein, on North Academy street shortly after 9 p. m., Matthew Ryan appeared before Judge H. T. Maxfield, in municipal court, Monday, on an intoxication charge. Pleading guilty, he was sentenced to 60 days flat in the county jail, with an additional six months if he fails to pay a $100 fine. Brule Beyers told the court he was suffering from the effects of morphine, not liquor, when arrested late Sunday night by Patrolman George Porter on West Bluff street, but he was fined $25 and costs or 30 days.

Girl of Ghost Mountain

By J. ALLAN DUNN

Author of "A Man to His Mate," "Rimrock Trail," "The Man Trap."

Copyright by Small, Maynard and Company, and published by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Mary Burrows, with a giant, blonde girl, Thora, lives on the plateau on top of Ghost Mountain in Arizona. Peter Sheridan, now a law-abiding citizen, with tuberculosis, has bought a ranch at Chico Mesa and is recovering his health. His ranch is on the edge of the Jackson, foreman of the ranch. They rescue a Chinaman, Quong, from the clutches of Hollister, a cattle rustler. Peter finds a way to the ranch on top of the mountain and foils an attempt of the local gang of rustlers to annoy the woman. Red faces love with Thora. Hollister, swearing revenge, kidnaps Mary and takes her to the Bonanza mine where he has hidden a poison mescal and going blind, suggests off and is lost. Mary alone, rescued later by Peter, who has ridden after her. Tales of marvelous gold in the canyon are told.

Sheridan watched him wrap saddle and bridle with their blanket and cover them with sand. They were going on, about twenty-five miles of ever increasing desert ahead. If they got to the Painted Rocks by midnight they would be doing well. And how were they to find the first and last of the desert? How would they find her? "Get her before it is dark," Juanita, discarded mistress of Hollister, had warned. All the way that they would go the sun would be sinking ahead of them, marking off the day.

As Jackson straightened up Sheridan placed his reins behind his saddle horn. He turned the mare and slumped back in the flanks, bidding her go home.

"Go home, Goldie, poor old girl," he said. "Go home."

She went a little way, uncertainly, then stopped and whinnied. He turned her on and she began limping. But when the two men turned to trudge on to their distant goal, the mare wheeled and followed them like a dog that craves company. Sheridan halted.

"She must go back," he said. "She'll find her way home easy enough. If she comes she'll have to share our water."

"If we go any farther," she said, "the sun will be down. You can't shoo her home. Better let her follow. We may need her after all, if she is lame."

And the three trailed on, following the sun that seemed simultaneously to beckon and threaten, on to where even the cactus began to fail and the mesa turned to a desert where nothing grew. Once they turned aside to the foot of the range and Jackson found in his spring, a brackish puddle with which he filled his canteen and flask and slaked their thirst.

The sun set back of Pyramid Hills, still far away and the swift change of temperature found them shivering. They had had no food save a few prickly pears they had peeled, some lumps of cactus they had skinned and chewed. In the fever of pursuit they had forgotten provisions. The sun and sand had taken heavy toll. The lame mare was now the best of the three. Three hours later the moon came up, glancing all the plain. Their water was gone. They did not miss it so much in the coolness but their tongues were soon swollen and they were tired to stumbling, caked with the desert.

They plodded up and down a draw. They no longer chose a path but kept straight on towards Pyramid Hills and a low mound that was slowly rising in mid distance, the Painted Rocks, the City of Silence.

On the ridge Jackson went to his hands and knees. Sheridan bent to help him but Red was pointing to the sand. There, edges shaded by the moon, were the tracks of two horses. They were fresh. The tracks were straight and they were tired to stumbling, caked with the desert.

Clear Bright Eyes
The woman who is seeking to retain her youth and attractiveness has one thing to remember: her eyes. No matter how old her face and figure may become, her eyes will always stay young if she wishes them to be so. Old eyes are only seen when the woman has either given up all hope of getting anything further from life, or when she doesn't care.

The best part of it is that the eyes grow more beautiful the older the woman becomes, and they can always balance, or more than balance, the lessening attractions of her other features. As the moon gives most light when it is full, so a woman's eyes yield most in maturity. So says a famous writer.

What they yield in way of gentleness, or vivacity, intelligence or sweetness depends not only on the woman as she is today but on what she has been. The eyes are a woman's past and present. If she has lost her eyes, she has lost her life. If she has lost her eyes, she has lost her life. If she has lost her eyes, she has lost her life.

To thread a needle with yarn or heavy, soft-twisted cotton, thread, it first with a length of strong, fine thread, then slip the yarn through the loop or double end of the thread, and pull on the loose ends, thus drawing the yarn through the eye of the needle. The same method may be employed with any thread, and the thread instead of threading the needle, and you will find the process much quicker and easier.

Browned Rice—Place a heavy saucepan, preferably of iron, over a low flame, dry, and as it becomes hot pour into it one or two pounds of dry rice, stirring and turning almost constantly until the rice has turned an even, delicate brown all over. Whether this browned rice is boiled or steamed, it will take less time than ordinary rice, and the browned rice has a particularly cooked taste. The rice is slightly nutty and most persons think it delicious. It is a pleasant substitute for potatoes, especially with chicken.

My digestion got all out of gear, my appetite was so lax, my meals were not half what they should be, and I lost my usual strength and energy. I was nervous, dizzy, depressed, and my troubles piled up till it was pretty hard sledding.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls, both 28 years old. We have been together for about a year. After going with them a few times we fell very deeply in love with these young men and had set the date for a double wedding to which our parents had given consent. But now several old gossip has told our parents there was a reason for our plans of anasty marriage, which is certainly untrue. But our parents listened with believing ears. Both our men friends and we girls have tried to make them see things differently but instead of listening they have made us break our engagement and our hearts are broken, as we had our wedding clothes all made and had planned on living together.

We love these men so much we cannot give them up. They have told us many times they would never marry unless they married us. Please advise us what to do to make our parents see things differently. We are in a very bad way. We are in a very bad way. We are in a very bad way.

LA TEST MARKET REPORT

Weekly Livestock Review

Chicago.—Large receipts in the hog and cattle market reduced prices somewhat, but the reverse was true with sheep and lambs, which saw a big decrease in receipts and a consequent rise in prices. All three markets showed good healthy condition, and what drops there were were not radical, sheep prices coming back at the end of the week.

Deer values slumped under burden of rather liberal receipts on the initial season, but thereafter the market recovered and at the close prices were generally 10c to 15c above the week-end prices. This advance was evident on practically all steers and yearlings, except strictly choice hinds, which still sold at the same level. Some of the medium grades displayed more gain.

Total hog receipts at 172,300 were largest in about a month's time. Daily top prices fluctuated within a 20-cent range, ranging from $12.50 to $13.00, while high and low averages were 25 cents apart. Top price at $13.00 stands lower than any of the week's price since December, 1921, but was only 10 cents lower than the previous week.

Sheep receipts were 3,000 smaller than the week before, and stand considerably lower than receipts for corresponding periods of the previous year. Aged sheep prices averaged at $7.50, including previous week and standing above a year ago. Average price of yearlings jumped to $12.00, owing largely to the supply of range hogs which this week. Lamb values throughout the week experienced the sharpest gains of the year, closing sales reaching $10.00 to $10.50, compared with late the week before. All classes shared in the general advance.
